FIELDWORK EXPERIENCE

- 2022-present New Haven, CT Student Researcher and Community Outreach Worker, Fair Haven Community Health Care and the Henry Koerner Center for Emeritus Faculty
Mentors: Mellisa Pensa, MD, MPH and Susan Forster, MD
Collaborating with residents and community organizations in the predominantly Latinx Fair Haven neighborhood of New Haven to identify contributors to food insecurity and design interventions.
- 2019-2021 New Haven, CT Doctoral Student Researcher, Yale University Department of Anthropology
Mentor: Marcia C. Inhorn, PhD, MPH
Examined resistance to structural oppression among Latin American migrant mothers living through the Trump administration and the COVID-19 pandemic. Conducted in-person ethnographic semi-structured and oral history interviews in addition to phone interviews due to pandemic restrictions.
- 2015 Sucúa, Ecuador Pre-Doctoral Student Researcher, Yale University Department of Anthropology
Mentor: Richard G. Bribiescas, PhD
Assessed biomarkers for psychosocial stress due to phenotypic (skin color) discrimination in a multiethnic community using ethnographic interviews and dried blood spots.
- 2013 Shanghai, China Undergraduate Student Researcher, Washington University in St. Louis (at Fudan University)
Mentors: Carolyn Sargent, PhD, Jianfeng Zhu, PhD
Investigated experiences, attitudes, and beliefs surrounding female infertility treatment through biomedicine and traditional Chinese medicine at clinics and pharmacies using ethnographic interviews and media analysis.
- 2011-2012 St. Louis, MO Undergraduate Research Assistant, Washington University in St. Louis Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology
Mentor: Kelle Moley, MD
Assessed mechanisms of female infertility using mouse models and human endometrial tissue.
